South Side

Four varied plays will be presented tonight in South's annual One-Act Play Festival.

Armand Zimmermann's "A Dream" is the story of a young girl who awakes after a terrifying nightmare to find reality much more frightening. The cast includes Dave Anderson, Patti Beebout, Mark Alexander, Teresa Crimmins, Jerry Alman, Dawn Langer, Susan Earl, and Gary Sheets. The student director is Deborah Frankie.

Student director Pattie Berry also stars with Roger Marimoto in Cleve Haubold's "The Big Black Box." It is a dialogue between a modern, social-climbing man and a large black box.

In "Dreamlost," the main character finds comfort and hope for living after he confronts his wife one year after her death. The play, by Robert Johnson, stars Carolyn May, Joe Landid, Jill Kirka, Linda Zellberger, and Kent Purrington, and is directed by Jill Kirka.

Molly MacLeod directs Deborah Strubar and Christopher Sampson in "This Property is Condemned" by Tennessee Williams. Debbie portrays a girl of 13 living alone in a condemned house, defying society's standards.

Each of the four plays will be judged, and one will be selected to compete at the Long Beach festival. The first play tonight begins at 8 p.m. Tickets are priced at $1 for adults. They can be purchased at the door of South's cafeteria.
